VOL. II. NO. 62 GREENSBORO, N. C., SATURDAY, APRIL 9, 1898. Price Two Cents

Until Further Notice

we will give a discount of 8 per cent. on all cash sales except brown and bleached domestics, which will be sold for 5 per cent. discount, job lots and special sales at prices named and no discount.

This will enable us to sell $1.25 worth of goods for $1.15

For Example:

Any one selling goods on credit is sure to lose at least 5 per cent. and it will cost at least 3 per cent to keep books and collect accounts. This 8 per cent, the customer saves by paying cash, and we make 5 per cent. by having the ready cash to discount our bills. So you see the customer paying cash gets goods 8 per cent. cheaper than the one who buys on credit. Does this not seem reasonable? Think the matter over and give us your cash trade and save that 8 per cent., which is good interest on your money.

Youes truly,

J M Hendr x & Co.

MRS. COTTON'S RECITAL.

An Ideal Evening and a Large Audience Greeted Her.

Last night in the Chapel of G. F. College Mrs. Sallie S. Cotton, of Falkland, N. C., read her famous poem, "The White Doe, or The Fate of Virginia Dare." A large and appreciative audience welcomed her to Greensboro again. She is well known here, having delivered the alumnae address to Greensboro Female college at last commencement.

Miss Manie Currie, of Maxton, read a short, though beautiful, sketch of the myths and traditions connected with Virginia Dare, the first white child born on the American continent. Then Miss Addie Latham, in a few choice words, introduced Mrs. Cotton.

The reading of the poem consumed but an hours time, and that hour was spent with intense interest on the part of the audience. The style of delivery was exceedingly easy and attractive. The description of the scenery in early north eastern North Carolina was true to nature. Her interpretation of the myths connected with the conversion of Virginia into a white doe and of the reconversion was deep, strong, still, and beautiful; so also was her interpretation of the Indian and early white life on our eastern shore. The poem has a good plot, if this term can be applied to a poem. The characters are in the main true to nature—at any rate true to our best myths. In the portrayals of their deeds of heroism and love she touches the depths of pathos, and often she reaches the sublime and the beautiful.

This poem is soon to be published in book form; and then it will take its place among the very finest literature of our day. It will preserve in beautiful form one of our most beautiful myths.

A Colored Man Hurt.

This morning a colored man who drives for Troxler Bros. was thrown from his wagon at the junction of South Elm and Lewis streets and right badly hurt. He was picked up and soon got alright but for the bruises about his head.

No Morning Service.

On account of the opening of West Market street church there will be no service at Centenary church tomorrow morning. The pastor and congregation have been kindly invited by Dr. J. H. Weaver to hear Dr. E. E. Hoss. The pastor will preach at 8 p. m.

Literary Meeting of Epworth League.

The regular monthly literary meeting of Centenary Epworth League was held last night at the residence of Dr. E. L. Stamey, on South Elm street. An interesting program was rendered, after which games were played and refreshments served. At 11 o'clock the guests departed after having spent an evening of unusual enjoyment.

Postponement.

The Emma Gray Missionary Society have, on account of Easter holiday, postponed their regular meeting from Monday, the 11th, to Tuesday, the 12th. To this meeting all young girls over sixteen are most cordially invited. A pleasing program has been arranged, after which refreshments will be served.

A Small Fire.

Last night about 11:15 o'clock the boiler house at the furniture factory was found to be on fire and but for the timely work of some colored men the entire factory would soon have been ablaze. From the tank near by they secured water with which they kept the flames from spreading until the Eagle boys arrived upon the scene and made short work of the fire. The fire is supposed to have originated from the boiler. We did not learn the extent of the damage.

First Church Announcement.

There will be no services of any kind in the First Presbyterian church next Sunday morning or at night. Preaching, Sunday school, Christian Endeavor, are all suspended that we may celebrate with our Methodist brethren the happy day that marks the formal opening of their beautiful new house of worship.

Egbert W. Smith.

Failed to Materalize.

A call was made yesterday for a meeting at the courthouse last night for the purpose of reorganizing the defunct Guilford Grays, but it seems the patriotism of the ex-soldier boys in our midst has not reached the reorganizing point, as there was no response to the call. In fact, one citizen remarked this morning that there were not enough present to light the gas—not even enough to constitute a corporal's guard.

The Merrymakers

In the "Land of Gold," at the Academy of Music last night was an artistic success. It depicts in a very picturesque manner the serious and humorous life in the new Klondike gold regions. The characters are vividly drawn and true to nature. Mr. Robisch as Judge Lovetoddy was a great success. He is one of the best comedians seen in our city this season. Mr. Holmes is always at home in the heroic lead and his work shows careful training, and an artistic finish seldom exhibited. Ted Byers, in black face proved himself an all round artist. Miss Mayme Childress, as the pet of Klondike is a clever little actress—her singing and dancing has won her many admirers.

Tonight the Merrymakers finish their engagement and will present "The War of Wealth" a comedy drama. Their refined specialties will be a feature of the performance.

Ladies will be admitted free tonight, same as on Thursday, if purchased in advance at Gardner's drug store.

More Accurate Service in Greensboro Than Baltimore

Mr. C. M. Vanstory had his little girl's eyes examined in Baltimore last year and went with the prescription to one of the largest and best known optical houses there to have the glasses made up. FORTUNATELY one of the lenses got broken recently and was carried to the Greensboro Eye Specialist to be replaced. He saw at a glance that neither lens accorded with the prescription, and so changed them both. Mr. Vanstory sent the old lenses with an explanation to the occulist who had given the prescription and in reply received the following;

The death of Brann, the editor of The Iconoclast, was a good riddance, not only to the state of Texas but to the country at large. Few could have been sorry to hear of his being killed. He was a menace to human life in his immediate community, but worse even than that, his hurtful writings, having an unusual power and attractiveness, were poison to the mind, and his peculiar and aggressive style was building up for The Iconoclast an immense circulation all over the country.—Charlotte Observer.

We feel constrained to take good natured issue with the Observer. While there was a great deal in the writings of Mr. Brann that was objectionable we could readily forgive that for the fact that he said so many things that needed to be said very badly, yet that nobody else would say. He went too far, doubtless, in his exposure of shams and hypocrisies, yet it should not be forgotten that he devoted himself mainly to such exposures.

Among the strenuous efforts of diplomatists to preserve peace, and amid the varying interests urging peace or war, there is one thing that should not be forgotten or obscured: An American warship was treacherously blown up by the Spanish authorities and the blood of American seamen cries out for vengeance. There are no concessions short of the evacuation of Cuba by the Spaniards that can atone for that. It is not surprising that their comrades on the other American ships should long for an opportunity to avenge their treacherous death. If the ship had belonged to England or Germany Morro Castle would have been pulverized weeks ago. The millenium has not dawned yet. Respect is yielded only to that nation which compels it by a rigorous protection of her citizens and her interests.

So the Cuban Junta will regard intervention by the United States as equivalent to a declaration of war against the "Cuban Republic," unless this Government shall previously recognize the Provisional government set up by the bushwhackers of Gomez and Garcia as an independent power.—Philadelphia Record.

The Record has earned a reputation for decency and seemliness, but this cheap sneer certainly adds nothing to it. The Cuban Junta is quite right. Armed intervention at this time that did not carry with it a recognition of Cuban independence would be a declaration of war not against the "bushwhackers" of Gomez but against the band of patriots who under his guidance have for three years waged single handed contest against Spanish tyranny. The contest has been practically successful. It is tolerably certain that without recognition by us, or intervention, Spain could not protract the struggle for one year longer. For us therefore to intervene "in behalf of humanity," "American interests" or any other thing whatsoever and force a peace without recognition of the independence of Cuba is to snatch from the insurgents a hardly won prize, now almost within their grasp. "Bushwhackers" comes with ill grace from any American, and is far from being a badge of honor to the Philadelphia Record.

The eleventh anniversary number of the Southern Tobacco Journal published at Winston is an exceedingly handsome number. It is not the first time by any means that the Journal has gotten itself out beautifully but it never did better.

SATURDAY'S LITERARY CHAT.

[All books and magazines mentioned below may be had at Wharton's book store.]

The most important instalment of Prof. Raper's "History of Church and Private Schools" appears in this number of the College Message. In it there is given the history of Davinson, Trinity and Guilford Colleges.

In the April Cosmopolitan, among a good deal that is inconsequential, of real interest are the "Conquest of Fear" by Thos. B. Reed, and "Manhunting in India," by Chas. Johnston. The latter is an expose of England's method of conquest, by one who has served in the Bengal civil service. Paul Laurence Dunbar, the negro poet, has a short story-and other fiction is at par.

One always takes up the Century with a sense of pleasant anticipation and one is never disappointed. This number is especially rich in good things. "A Challenge," by Richard Malcom Johnson is the best short story since Stockton's "House That Moved Itself." "Over the Alps on a Bicycle," "The New Telegraphy," the first of a series of papers, "The Seven Wonders of the World," "Heroes of the Life Saving Service" are among the other contributions. Specially interesting just now is "A Famous Sea Fight," describing the well known battle between Chilian and Peruvian ironclads.

The latest of the fifty odd novels by John Strange Winter is just issued by Lippincotts. It is called "The Peacemakers," and is a rarely good commentary on the gap between religious profession and performance.

Joseph Hatton's forthcoming tale is entitled "The Vicar."

In honor of the seventieth birthday of Count Leo Tolstoi, which falls on August 28 (O. S.) the town authorities of Moscow intend establishing an elementary school which is to bear his name. Gount Tolstoi will celebrate at the same time the fiftieth anniversary of his literary activity.

Mrs. Craigie is not only writing a sequel to her brilliantly-epigrammatic success, "The School for Saints," but she also has a new novel almost ready.

It is said of Lionel Decle's new work, "Three Years in Savage Africa," that it will become a classic of travel.

The posthumous work by Sir Richard Burton, the first to be published since Lady Burton's death, "The Jew, the Gypsy and El Isalm," will contain an exhaustive study of the Gypsy in different parts of the world, and an analysis of the merits of Islamism.

Professor Hugh Walker, of St. David's College, Lampeter, has arranged to write a history of recent English literature. This has been suggested by the Professor's book, "The Age of Tennyson." Professor Walker will start at about 1830 and endeavor to illustrate the relations between literature and national life, and also to utilize such incidents in the lives and such traits in the charters of the writers as can be made really illustrative of their works.

Strawberries pay better than anything else raised on the Texas coast in the region about Alvin, it is said, and the value of the output for the present month is estimated at $1,000 a day.

Efforts are making in West Virginia to erect a monument to the Rev. J. Wesley Webb, who for a third of a century was regarded as the most eloquent and popular preacher in the Methodist church there. It is the design to put on the tombstone the inscription which he himself composed: "Here lies J. Wesley Webb, a firm believer in the Lord Jesus Christ, the Methodist church, and Jeffersonian Democracy."

Awkward Indeed.

The most awkward man in the world lives in Tennessee. He recently shot a dog, and in explaining to the dog's owner, shot him. Later, in showing the coroner how the tragedy occurred, he shot the coroner. He has been liberated for fear that he will try to explain it to somebody else.—Jacksonville, Fla, Times-Union.

You want Dr. King's New Discovery because you know it to be safe and reliable, and guaranteed to do good or money refunded. General News in a Nutshell.

Wheat is growing so fast in the Willamette Valley, Oregon, that the farmers are turning the sheep in to eat it down and even mowing it lest it attain such a rank growth that rust strike it.

Farmers about Port Lavaca, Tex., who heretofore have directed their attention wholly to the staple crops, have begun to raise vegetables for shipment, and the new crops are reported to be thriving.

Projectors of a telephone line between Arlington and Fossil, Gilliam county, Oregon, offer to build the line if the people to be benefited will haul the poles from the railroad to where they are required.

Thieves let out the water from an artificial lake in the vicinity of Mountain Lake Park, near Cumberland, Md., and stole all the larger fish and left the small ones to perish on the banks.

At Port Townsend, Wash., what is said to be the second known specimen of the big fish. Acrotus Wiloughby, has been taken. It was speared as it was swimming under a wharf. It weighs 100 pounds.

About Walla Walla, Or., the squirrels are so plentiful that young ones are run over in the roads, and the protection of the crops demands united effort and hard work by the farmers to exterminate them.

Kansas as seen by her coming citizens and reflected in their home poetry is shown in the following production of a schoolboy in response to his teacher's premptory order to write a composition on Kansas in verse:

"Kansas is the state the grasshoppers ate,
Where the cyclone blows careless and free,
Where the jackrabbit hops and the populist yaps;
Still the state's pretty good for to see."

On the report that two populists who have started a newspaper in Kansas have to conduct their affairs without the usual complement of clothing for each, the story has been revived of two brothers who, many years ago, settled in McPherson county, in that State, with practically only one complete suit between them, so that if one was obliged to go to town the other had to remain within or very near doors till his brother got back. They applied themselves energetically to work, and in due course attained to the possession of land and money.

The Grandest Remedy.

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief; spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed for coughs, colds and consumption. It don't fail. Trial bottles free at C E. Holton's drug store.

BLUE LAWS.

Some of the Peculiar Enactments That Obtained In Old Virginia.

Those who fancy that strict laws were peculiar to New England in colonial days should read some of the enactments of the Virginia assembly.

"It was enacted," writes Professor John Fiske in "Old Virginia and Her Neighbors," that any person found drunk was for the first offense to be privately reproved by the minister; the second time this reproof was to be publicly administered; the third time the offender must be put in irons for 12 hours and pay a fine; for any subsequent offenses he must be severely punished at the discretion of the governor and council.

"To guard the community against excessive vanity in dress it was enacted that for all public contributions every unmarried man must be assessed in church 'according to his own apparel,' and every married man must be assessed 'according to his own and his wife's apparel.'

"Not merely extravagance in dress, but such social misdemeanors as flirting, received due legislative condemnation. Pretty maids were known to encourage hopes in more than one suitor, and gay deceivers of the sterner sex would sometimes seek to win the affections of two or more women at the same time. Wherefore it was enacted that 'every minister should give notice in his church that what man or woman soever should use any word or speech tending to a contract of marriage to two several persons at one time as might entangle or breed scruples in their consciences, should for such their offense, either undergo corporal correction (by whipping) or be punished by fine or otherwise, according to the quality of the person so offending.'"

Men were held to more strict accountability for the spoken or written word than in these shameless modern days. One of the most prominent settlers we find presenting a petition to the assembly to grant him due satisfaction against a neighbor who has addressed to him a letter "wherein he taxeth him both unseemly and amiss of certain things wherein he was never faulty." Speaking against the governor or any member of the council was liable to be punished with the pillory. It was also imprudent to speak too freely about clergymen, who were held in great reverence. No planter could dispose of so much as a pound of tobacco until he had laid aside a certain specified quantity as his assessment toward the minister's salary, which was thus assured even in the worst times, so far as legislation could go.

SPILT HER LUNCH.

Sorry Accident to a Stylish Young Woman In a Train.

The passengers on an early morning train connecting with this city were treated to a thoroughly enjoyable scene the other morning. At one of the small stations a young lady boarded the train.

She was dressed rather stylishly, but a veil covered a rather plain face. She switched down the aisle like a queen. She barely deigned to glance at the other passengers in the car, and when she did her nose rose perceptibly at the tip in a manner that spread the impression of contempt.

She carried a Boston bag and the air of a millionaire. There was but one seat vacant. This was beside a good looking, nicely dressed young man who was reading a paper.

When she came to this seat, she flopped down heavily and tossed her bag to the seat between herself and the young man. Two seconds later the young man leaped from his seat, and a string of earnest words of doubtful origin fell from his lips like vipers from the lips of the young woman in the fable.

The startled passengers looked to see what had caused this outburst. They saw, and then they laughed. The nice looking Boston bag contained an ordinary, everyday working girl's lunch.

One of its features was a jar of coffee, which had broken in the descent and flowed freely over the young man's new fall coat and trousers.

He went into the smoking car, swearing profusely. She murmured a weak apology and spent her time in mopping up the seat.—Brockton Enterprise.

His Wife Won.

A Georgia man, who was unpopular in his community, insured his life for $2,000. He took the policy home to his wife and said:

"Maria, here's a life insurance document for $2,000."

"Thank you, dear," said his wife. "How are you feeling today?"

"Not well," he replied, "and I don't think I am long for this world, and I want to say to you that when I die it is my wish that you devote $1,000 of the money to defraying my funeral expenses."

"Mercy on me," exclaimed the wife, "why do you want such an expensive funeral?"

"I'll explain. I'm perfectly satisfied that nobody will attend my funeral, and I want to hire people to go at so much a head. I'm going out today and see what arrangements I can make for attendants on that forthcoming melancholy occasion. If they won't come gratis, why—I'll just hire 'em an give 'em an order on you for the money."

He went forth and at nightfall returned with a dejected look.

"Maria," he said, "it's no use. You can have the whole $2,000. Just go to my funeral yourself."—Atlanta Constitution.

In His Line.

Miles—I see your friend Hawkins has another "selling out at cost" sign tacked up on the front of his store.

Giles—Yes. Do you know, I think Hawkins missed his vocation. He should have been a political campaign manager.

Miles—Why so?

Giles—He is continually nailing lies.—Chicago News.

The Hardware News.

PUBLISHED BY ODELL HARDWARE CO.

EDITORIAL.

This is a period of great uncertainty.

Take the matter of war with Spain, concerning which there is so much talk.

In the first place, it is uncertain as to whether we shall have war.

And if we do it is uncertain how long it will last, or how much damage will be done—or anything—

Except—no one seems to think it uncertain that we shall finally lick 'em.

That's all.

—o—

Then take the weather.

No one knows what will be needed three days hence—coal vases or refrigerators.

It will not be long before it will be certain that you need refrigerators, ice cream freezers, lawn mowers, garden tools—yes, and hose and lawn sprinklers.

Are you thinking of buying a new wheel this season? If so, you will not make a mistake if you select a Crawford or a Tribune.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Wheels in your head

could not be expected to contribute to your pleasure, but a wheel in the right place, if of the right kind, will afford more pleasure than any other article of similar cost. Be sure that you get the right kind of a wheel. The Crawford is the right kind.

Have you seen the Tribune?

A strictly high grade wheel. If you buy it you won't be sorry.

An economical housekeeper should always buy the best refrigerator that is made, for it will save enough in food in a season to pay for itself. Our National refrigerator is economical in consuming ice, and neither flesh, fish, fowl, or anything in the way of eatables will spoil in it if you keep a fair amount of ice in it.
